BALKAN CRISIS IS NOW A MENACE TO
PLANS OF ALLIES*Resignation of Greek Cabinet a Jolt for Entente
Powers.*BULGARIA IGNORING RUSSIA

That Nation Now Regarded as Certain to Align Her Forces With the Entente, Although Circumstances
are Less Favorable Than They Were.

By Associated Press.
ATHENS, Oct. 6.—Bulgaria
has rejected the Russian demands
and has sent an ultimatum to Serbia concerning Macedonia, according to information which has reached the Serbian government.

Bulgaria demands that Serbia reply to the ultimatum within 4 hours.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Word has been received from Athens that King Constantine has accepted the resignation of the Venizelos cabinet, which was united in action with the Entente powers. The king's next step in the face of the approaching Italian crisis,
the retirement of the premier and his associates, came unheralded after the chamber of deputies had rejected a vote of confidence in the ministry.

Official telegrams from Athens to the Greek legation here today said Premier Venizelos relinquished his office at 2.30 last night. No reasons were given, though the former's decision of opinion between the king and the premier resulted in the latter's temporary retirement from office.

It now seems certain that Bulgaria
will align herself with Germany, Austria and Turkey. The matter doubtless will be brought to a head by the lacking of Allied troops in Saloniki.
This procedure is regarded here as ineffectively placing Greece definitely within the Entente Powers, as she is considered as having virtually acquiesced
in this counter move against Bulgaria.

Although the time allotted for the Bulgarian reply to the Russian ultimatum expired yesterday afternoon, the king's decision, so far as has been made known, has not been made in any form. It is assumed that hostilities will soon be opened.

If a Greek ultimatum is issued, she will enter the war under conditions less favorable than a few weeks ago. The Russians, with reinforcements and a slowly increasing amount of artillery, seem to be attacking Bulgaria daily and the official German communications no longer register uncontested advances. The situation in the West has reached a stage of preparations following the recent Allied offensive and the Germans are still struggling to regain the ground lost. Intense artillery action is again predominant on the French front, indicating that the positions
have been considerably changed.

The Grand Ducy of Luxembourg, according to Amsterdam advices, has protested to the Entente Powers against air raids over that country
aimed at the German headquarters.

VENIZELIS RESIGNATION
TAKEN OVER BY SURPRISE.
ATHENS, Oct. 6.—The resignation of Premier Venizelos was accepted by the king yesterday with the corresponding of the Associated Press at noon today in a manner which indicated the utmost confidence in the future course of his government.

Meanwhile King Constantine came to Athens from Corfu, the summer residence of the royal family, and summoned the premier to the palace.
After a few minutes' interview, in which there was the plainest speaking,
the premier proceeded to the chamber of deputies and announced that he had resigned and that the king had accepted his resignation and that of his cabinet.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—King Constantine
of Greece has accepted the resignation of the Venizelos cabinet, according to an official dispatch which reached London today.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Reuters Athens
correspondent states that Rumania is hurriedly dispatching troops to the Bulgarian frontier and otherwise taking extraordinary military measures.

PERSIANS KILL BRITISH CONSUL, SAYS REPORT
BERLIN, Oct. 6.—The Lokal An-zeiger publishes a dispatch from Constantinople saying that the British consul and his staff in Persia have been killed by Persians.

A dispatch from Tehran forwarded from London on September 11, said anarchy prevailed in Persia, that the military government had been defeated by tribesmen and that the British and Russian consuls at Tehran had been forced to leave for Bagdad.

during their married life they spent only two nights together. Hanes divorced her, she said, December 31, 1914.

Mrs. Minnie M. Thorpe secured a divorce from Clyde E. Thorpe, 32 years old, on grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment. They were married in cursed her. As a result of his treatment, Mrs. Thorpe said that she be-

JAIL DELIVERY FOILED

Warden of Westmoreland Prison
Finds Bars Stowed Through.

Discovery of a number of saws in the cell of a prisoner in the Westmoreland county jail several days ago prevented a jail delivery. Warden Nichols believes. Several bars had been sawed through and it is believed several prisoners, among them two under sentence of death, were in the plot to escape.

The same were found in the cell of James Miller, a prisoner from Par-nassus, who was committed for having stolen an automobile.

The annual first aid contests among prick teams of the H. C. Prick Coke

ABOUT ROCKEFELLER PLAN.

Early Returns Indicate That It Will Carry 8 to 1.

By Associated Press.
DENVER, Oct. 6.—Complete returns from 13 camps including all in Law Animas and Abasco counties today indicated the adoption of the Rockefeller industrial plan by employees of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company by a vote of at least 8 to 1.
The total vote recorded was:
For, 1,920; against, 230.

The referendum vote was to be taken in the Fremont county camps today. Reports still were lacking from one or two small camps in Western Colorado.

NOMINEES AT DUNBAR

Republican Candidates Will Enjoy
Festivities of Old Home Week.

Special to The Courier.
UNIONTOWN, Oct. 6.—All of the Republican nominees for county offices will attend the Old Home Week celebration at Dunbar Thursday and Friday. This was decided here at a meeting of the candidates
yesterday with County Chairman Charles O. Schroyer. On account of the campaign being a short one, the election being less than a month away, it was found that a personal canvass of the entire county by all of the candidates will be impossible.
The greater number of the Republican nominees visited the greater number of the voters before the primaries.

Instead of making the personal canvasses the Republican nominees will make trips throughout the county in a body. A committee visiting the larger centers. Announcements will be made in advance of the dates when the candidates will visit the various towns of the county in a body. A committee to arrange for the meetings appointed by County Chairman Schroyer is composed of Controller Harry Kishner, Thomas L. Howard, nominee for sheriff, and Logan Kishner, nominee for county commissioner.

Extensive advertising will be done.
It being the plan to have posters for street cars and billboards and window cards. Newspaper advertising will also be done. The Connellsville and Scottsdale companies will probably have their celebration advertised together on one big sheet. Scottsdale will come to Connellsville to help out here on Friday, and then the local dramen will pay a visit to the Hill
Town and park theaters.

To have as many bands in line as possible is the aim of the fire company and invitations have been sent to seven different musical organizations.

tions have been sent to the Leisoring

BOOST AMERICA FIRST

Movement to Increase Size of Classes
for Naturalization.

An "America First" movement of national scope, designed to increase the number of applications for naturalization papers and to educate the applicants to a better appreciation of their advantages here, has reached Connellsville. The National Bureau of Education and the National Americanization Committee is co-operating with the local schools in the formation of classes before the regular night school begins in November.
Colored posters showing a picture of Uncle Sam welcoming the foreign workmen and containing description of the advantages of citizenship in 10 languages are to be placed in the foreign banks and in other public places.
These urge the foreign resident to adopt America as his country because "it means a better opportunity and a better home in America; it means a better job; it means a better chance for your children. It means a better American." They are asked to inquire of the nearest public school about classes.

Superintendent S. P. Asho placed one of the posters in the foreign department of the Young Trust Company today. He will have about 20
more in a short time.

FALL OF SLATE INJURES TWO Caught for Three Hours Before Assistance Arrives.

The condition of John Durkin and Mike Kotovoy, who were injured in a fall of slate in the Oliver No. 1
mine Tuesday morning, was reported to be favorable to their ultimate recovery this morning. They had been promptly rushed to the Uniontown hospital immediately after the accident.

Both men had been pinned down
for more than three hours by a fall
of slate before they were discovered.
Durkin was assisted mine foreman
and was the more seriously injured.
Besides lacerations of the face he had lost the sight of one eye. No victor was injured about the head and received a dislocated wrist.

The accident occurred while the men were walking in the pit and came unexpectedly. They were caught in such manner that they could neither help themselves nor call for help. It was therefore by the merest chance that they were discovered when they were by a passing miner.

RESIDENTS KICK
Light Out For a Week and Rowdies Gather.

Residents in the vicinity of the corner of Johnston and Gibson avenues are complaining of the disorder in that section the last few nights,
caused by persons who take advantage of the absence of the patrol which has not been lighted for nearly a week.

The police are supposed to report
all lights out in making their rounds.
To that end the meeting of the patrolman on the North End has visited this section, the residents say.

ORGANIZING DAIRYMEN.
Farm Agent Will Meet Men of This Section Thursday.

P. E. Daugherty, Fayette county farm agent, is head of a movement to organize the dairymen of this section.
To that end a meeting of all dairymen having eight cows or more will be held Thursday night in the Connellsville township supervisors' room in the Title & Trust Building.

The idea is to demonstrate the dairymen the possibilities of an organization. A testing association may develop, Mr. Daugherty said today.

SCHOOL IS CLOSED
Fourth Ward Room Will be Fungated
Before It Is Reopened.

Room No. 2 in the Fourth ward building, taught by Miss Ruth Davidson, was closed this morning in order that it might be fumigated.

nue, is ill with diphtheria and it was discovered by the school authorities that her sister had been attending

When Croup Comes Treat Externally

The old method of dosing delicate little stomachs with nauseous drugs is wrong and harmful. Try the external treatment—Vick's "Vaporub" Salve. Just rub a little over the throat and chest. The vapors, released by the body heat, loosen the choking phlegm and ease the difficult breathing. A healing application insures sound sleep. 25c, 50c, or $1.00.

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

When Cross, Feverish and Sick Give "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely. A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv.

APPLIED AS A COLD CREAM ACTS AS A MEDICINE.

Wherever applied, its healing and nourishment is instantly absorbed by the pores. It strengthens and builds up the tissues underlying the skin and Firm, Healthy Flesh is the result.

DR. CHARLES FLESH FOOD is no new experiment. It has been in use for more than fifty years and during that time thousands of women and men have used it with entire satisfaction.

That it is not to be classed with "Cold Creams" and other things of like superficial potency is proved by the fact that it is prescribed by leading physicians and used in hospitals for the nutrition of invalids whose stomachs are too weak to digest food.

DR. CHARLES FLESH FOOD should be used by every woman who has the least desire to be attractive. It is the only preparation that will round out hollowed, thin cheeks or scrawny neck with Firm, Healthy Flesh and Remove Wrinkles from the face and hands, no matter how deep the furrows.

FOR DEVELOPING THE IMMATURE BUST or to make the breast firm, large and beautiful nothing can equal it. To prevent the breasts from shrinking, after weaning baby, mothers should always use DR. CHARLES FLESH FOOD. It will also restore a bosom to its natural contour and beauty lost through nursing and sickness.

STEEL MERCHANTS.

Persistent rumors of steel mergers have been prevalent for the past six months or more involving the Bethlehem, Carnegie, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Midvale and Youngstown companies, and these rumors have been stirred up by the actual acquisition by William H. Coney, Alvin C. Dinkley and others of the rather mysterious Midvale company.

These stories are perhaps all guesses, but a combination which will include some or all of these plants is not impossible. If it does not come now it will probably come some time in the future. Combinations are coming back into fashion again since it has been discovered that they will be necessary in order to meet European competition when the war is over. At present the demand for steel is limited only to the capacity of the plants and it is a seller's market. Under such conditions there is not the keen incentive for combination which comes with dull times, divided profits and the necessity for economical production involving the elimination of all middlemen's profits and the adoption of efficiency plans which will utilize every advantage in manufacture from mine to the mill.

It is possible, as has been claimed, that a combination will be formed by Andrew Carnegie's Big Three, namely, Bethlehem, Coney and Dinkley, to organize a corporation, the United States Steel Corporation and composed of the steel plants mentioned, but such a combination would have to reckon with Henry C. Frick, who holds a large interest in the Pennsylvania steel companies. These two companies in combination with the Maryland Steel Company might prove an industrial unit capable of taking care of itself in the markets of the world under proper home conditions. Such conditions will only be possible by the revision of the tariff on Republican lines.

EFFICIENCY.

Some months ago, when the Connelville Water Company installed on installing water meters upon the premises of a large number of its customers and withdrawing the flat rate from them, all without their consent and without even consulting them. The Courier suggested that the Council instruct the City Solicitor to seek relief from the imposition by application to the Public Service Commission. The matter was brought to the attention of Solicitor Fletcher, who informed the Council that the preparation of such a case would involve much time and large cost. Furthermore, it was plainly intimated that the Public Service Commission was a creature of politics and no justice could be expected from that quarter.

At that time Solicitor Fletcher was not suspected of being a creature of politics himself, and his opinion in the matter was hearkened to in spite of our protests and assurances that the Public Service Commission was the most accessible court in the land and one in which the client with a grievance might be heard with or without a lawyer.

A Connelville man took the statement of The Courier more seriously than the Council did. He was a victim of the water impostment of the water company. He set forth his grievance in a letter to the Public Service Commission, the receipt whereof was promptly acknowledged, and he was promptly offered a restoration of the flat rate by the water company.

Counselor Fletcher is a candidate for the office of District Attorney of Fayette county on a platform of efficiency. With due respect to the ability of the learned counselor, it is evident that his efficiency in the matter of serving the public does not compare with that of the Public Service Commission. Its justice is winged.

That the usual difference between Republican and Democratic administration.

SUSAN NEWMYER MCCORMICK.

The death of Susan Newmyer McCormick removes one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Connelville. She was the widow of the late John McCormick, who died within the city limits from the time she came here a little over a year ago. "To be seventy years young is sometimes more cheerful and hopeful than to be forty years old," said Oliver Wendell Holmes, yet said Susan was eighty years young, she having retained her youthful disposition almost to the end of her mortal career. She knew the joy of living and she had a hearty and faithful manner of the happy Church death had no terrors for her. Her life's voyage was free from serious storms and her end was peace.

A GRAVE RESPONSIBILITY.

The Supreme Court has issued a rule on Judge Van Swearingen to show cause why he should not hand down his decision in the Thompson case. There is no reason why Judge Van Swearingen should not hand down this decision save that, practically all the Thompson creditors have requested him to hold it, and since they are the parties at interest the court is merely asked to serve them equitably. If the Supreme Court shall direct the opinion be rendered and the judgment be entered upon the record, the responsibility of Judge Van Swearingen will be at an end, it will be shifted to other shoulders. It is a grave responsibility.

Connellville will have a night school, that is if there is a demand for it. The law provides that such a school may be opened at the board upon the petition of twenty persons.

It's up to the aspirants for knowledge to make the next move.

The election is only a few weeks off and thus far nobody has said much about it but Candidate Hughes and the Buffaloes.

Silent John Morrow doesn't talk as much as Druppie Carter, but he believes in more work and less talk. Vote for Silent John.

A Carnegie's Big Three have all quit the old job and are suspected of gravitating together.

Dukaria must sit tight or get in the night.

Meet us in Dunbar.

The Connelville man who found his house filled with money is convinced that everything comes to him who waits, even the bee stings.

Mayor Marjeth is doing an excellent fall business, and his customers all have to fall for it.

It was Blue Monday in court.

J. Frost is in the neighborhood again.

Dunbar is so doped up that retreating politicians have trouble finding father's house.

The gas strike at Youngwood reminds us that it is about time for Connelville to try it over again.

Looking Backward

News of the Past Continued from the Files of The Courier.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1885.

The Improvement Association is at work on a proposition to have some of the larger property owners in town donate land for the use of new industries. Among those who have already agreed to donate are Joseph and John E. Solomon, Mrs. Henry Hackett, George A. Marple, J. R. Halsey and James McGee.

The Connelville postmaster is unsettled. Congressman Boyle has endorsed L. W. Butler, who is opposed by the Republicans, L. V. Goodrich, J. P. Norton and John A. Mellich.

The report of the first month shows the public schools to have an average enrollment of 500.

Over 20,000 people attend the performance of Barnum & Bailey's circus, P. T. Barnum, now 75 years old, announces that he will undertake one more "farewell" tour after this one.

Detailed report of the coke trade for the week ending Saturday, October 6, shows a total of 17,931 ovens in the region, of which 15,581 are active and 2,350 are idle, with an estimated production of 166,200 tons.

Shipments for the week aggregate 8,955 cars, consigned as follows: To Pittsburgh, 2,530 cars; to points west, 1,665 cars; to points east, 1,407 cars.

Coke production is keeping up well but shipments are falling below. A shortage of water is causing trouble at some of the plants.

Extensive improvements to the Baltimore & Ohio shops call for a new roundhouse to be built on what is known as "Hog's Field," and a turntable nearby. The latter will be large enough to turn the largest locomotives.

Reports for the first month of school show an attendance of 1,072.

The people of New Haven refuse the application of the Connelville, New Haven & Lehighville railroad for permission to enter that town by way of Elchick street. The council contends that the company has not paid the improvements to Greenwood Hill road and that no further franchises will be granted until it does.

An unprecedented drought prevails throughout the county.

William K. Vandervelt and a party of Lake Erie officials visit New Haven on an inspection tour.

Frank Mench, a brakeman on the Pennsylvania railroad, is severely injured in a collision at Mount Pleasant.

Samuel Freeman Wood and Miss Emma J. Forry of Philadelphia, are married.

Shipments for the week aggregate 15,251 cars, consigned as follows: To Pittsburgh, 6,286 cars; to points west, 3,092 cars; to points east, 1,125 cars.

The coke trade outlook for the coming week is auspicious. A price of $2.10 a ton is easily secured on new contracts.

The Tyrone coke works at Broad Ford, after being abandoned for six years, is now in full blast. This is the first instance in the history of the coke industry where a plant has been re-equipped and placed in operation after being dismantled and abandoned.

The Kendall Lumber Company is capitalized at $1,000,000 to take over the lumber interests of J. L. and S. A. Kendall and those of other companies in the Young region.

Miss Mary Caroline, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Solson, is badly bitten by a ferocious dog while visiting at the home of her grandfather, John Reynolds, on Patterson avenue.

Vladivostok

By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "At Good Old Swank."

Vladivostok is a little city of less than 10,000 people which has had more adventures in the last twenty years than one hundred commercial clubs, working night and day, could have secured for it.

Some cities are founded by pioneers and some just grow like Topsy. But Vladivostok was founded by chance. It was built in order to provide a back door for the Russian empire through which war supplies could be shipped in case of trouble.

Vladivostok is located in the southeast corner of Siberia, uncomfortably near to Japan and inconveniently far away from everything else on earth. It is three weeks from San Francisco by water and ten days from Petrograd by rail. The harbor, which makes one-night stands in Siberia, has to travel 2,000 miles from the last open house to reach it, and in the winter when the Sea of Japan out in front of the harbor freezes up five feet thick, the only amusement is going down to the harbor and watching the ice.

Owing to all these facts Vladivostok has not grown extravagantly. It is 40 years old and only had 20,000 people at the last census. However, when these people travel abroad they do not fail to explain where their town is. It is in the front seat in the trouble zone when over Russia goes to war.

When the real estate agents begin opening up the Siberian wheat lands

Vladivostok is the terminus of the Siberian railway and has a big harbor, a busy yard, railroad shops and 300 restaurants where hot tea can be secured. It is as modern as an American city and at the present time its streets are full of American sailors, and its harbor is full of American ships unloading locomotives, automobiles and other hardware for Russia.

Vladivostok is popularly supposed to be situated in the frozen north and to do a heavy trade in snow-shovels on the fourth of July. However, it is not much farther north than Chicago and some day, when the coast trade agents begin opening up the Siberian wheat lands, it will become a great metropolis and tourists will get excursion rates thence from America, with stopovers at Kamchatka, the Aleutian Islands and other popular summer resorts. It does not do in these entertaining days to regard any land as a wilderness. The implement which crowded the exiles out of Western Canada in five years and the Eastern Siberian baseball league may begin making contracts.

COLUMBUS KNIGHTS TO HOLD A BANQUET IN THE MILL TOWN

Occasion Tuesday Will Mark Ninth Anniversary
of Scottdale Council.

MANY TO ATTEND THEATRE

Repeating of Portion of Broadway
Completed: Quarantine Is Lifted;
Honors An Event for Tonight; Other Notes of Interest of Mill Town.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Oct. 6.—Initiations
have been held by Scottdale Council
No. 1127, Knights of Columbus, for the ninth annual banquet and dance to be held in the field building,
on Columbus Day, Tuesday, October 12. The hours are from 8 to 2 and there will be music by Kilgus orchestra.

The committee in charge of the affair is made up of Daniel O'Brien,
L. P. Miller, J. Robert Ames, John H. Ryan, Joseph Glendinning and
M. E. O'Toole.

WILMIR: TONIGHT.
A number of Scottdale people are planning to journey to Connellsville
this evening to see "The Only Girl" at the Colonial Theatre. The Colonial has always been attractive to Scottdale people, and particularly so since Manager H. O. Kony has secured such high class attractions as he has been putting on.

PAVING COMPLETED.
The repaving of a portion of Broadway, in front of the field
building and northward, is now completed. This spot was much worn, the bricks holding together until they were almost worn through as it was found when they were taken up. The new paving was put in with a concrete foundation, instead of old bed, the concrete having been used on all the street paving
this year.

QUARANTINE LIFTED.
Read Love, son of Mr. and Mrs.
John H. Love, has recovered from an attack of scarlet fever and the quarantine sign was taken down last evening.

signs on the sidewalks announcing

Thin Men and Women

Do You Want to Get Fat and Be Strong?

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomachs or stuffed it with greasy foods; rubbing
on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt,
while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract properly assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to refuge druggists almost everywhere,
which seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This preparation is called Sargol and much remarkable testimony is given as to its successful use in flesh building. Sargol, which comes in the form of a small non-injurious tablet, taken at meals
and mixed with the digesting food.

tends to prepare its fat, flesh and muscle building elements so that the blood can readily accept and carry them to the starved portions of the body. You can readily picture the transformation. Thin additional and previously lacking flesh-making material should bring with your cheeks
lifting out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappearing and your taking on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is harmless, inexpensive, efficient. All leading druggists of this city have it and are authorized to refund your money if weight increase is not obtained as per the guarantee found in each large package.

NOTE: Sargol is recommended
only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.

When You Take Cold.

With the average man a cold is a serious matter and should not be trifled with, as some of the most dangerous diseases start with a common cold. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and get rid of your cold as quickly as possible. You are not experimenting when you use this remedy, as it has been in use for many years and has an established reputation. It contains no opium or other narcotic. Obtainable everywhere.—

Sick, Sour, Gassy Stomachs Feel Fine.

into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Diapensin, for this down "Pape's Diapensin" digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes,
but what pleasure you meet in that it

condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as
"Pape's Diapensin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just

of undigested food, your head clears
and you feel fine.

Oh now, make the best investment
you ever made, by getting a large bottle of "Pape's Diapensin" from any drug store. You will realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.—Adv.

Mount Pleasant

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, Oct. 4.—The St. Joseph's Sunday held a marsh-mallow toast at the Sparker park last evening.

On Monday evening the last of the boys who were paroled to their parents were given the privilege of choosing either good behavior or a chance to answer in juvenile court to the charges brought against them. Officer Whalen of Standard, gathered them in. Frederick Becker, a farmer living on the Shiller Hill farm box in the country works at the Scotland mills, and every evening someone drives to the Standard switch for him. At first the grandsons drove to the car line and the boys threw stones and shot stones from slingshots until they frightened the horse and it ran away, breaking up the bus. Then the boys were given another chance to behave themselves, and the Becker daughter drove after her father. Again stones and slingshots were in evidence, and this time one of the stones struck the girl. The boys who were brought before justice of the Peace L. G. Rhodes were: Thomas Goretzki, Frank Neigoda, Andy Mikula, Peter Oliva, John Gaszda, Yanko Furekko, John Kuchinsky and George Koval. When the boys were given a hearing, Judge Rhodes made plain the statement that it was not his desire to bring the boys before the juvenile court, but that every parent that signed must teach his child to respect other persons, and not allow them to gather in groups and play in the streets. Just how they teach them will depend whether the boys will be called into court.

Meers Saxon and Phillips of Pittsburgh were here and were accompanied by William Galey of this place to Laurel Hill, where they looked over ground and considered the possibilities of establishing a game preserve, to be owned by a couple of the Wild Life League. A meeting will be held here soon to consider this and some other sportsmen will be present.

Frank Karst of Hecla was the defendant in an assault and battery case brought before Judge L. G. Rhodes by Joe Plank. The case was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Postmaster Clyde Yatters has received orders that from October 15 there will be a fixed pouch mail service between Mansfield and the place the delivery to be made by rural route driver No. 2.

Twenty-five friends gathered at the first Washington street home of Mrs. Clara Styles Monday evening and gave her a very pleasant surprise in honor of her birthday. Very nice refreshments were served and a pleasant evening spent.

Miss Elizabeth Braddock left yesterday to visit the family of her mother, Mrs. Margaret Kortright of Morgantown. She is the guest of friends here.

Mrs. Fred Dunlop of Linton, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Fox.

NO HEART "DOPE" IN NERVALLINE

CAUTION! ALLIGED.

At last she found herself again in a faded plush car beside Juanita, with Young Milt sitting opposite. Old Milt was on that train, too, but he paused only to nod before disappearing into the shabby smoking compartment, where he had business to discuss. A man was waiting for him in there whom old acquaintances might have passed by without recognition. It was the hope of Milt McBrier that when they left the train at Perli, any acquaintances who might be about would do just this.

While the Christmas shoppers laughed in the day coach, Luke Thixton received final instructions in the empty smoker.

He was to pass as swiftly and unobtrusively as possible through Perli and go direct across the ridge.

He and Milt would leave the train without conversation or anything to mark them as companions. After that Luke knew what he was to do, and no further conference would be necessary.

It was noon when the train rumbled again over the trestle near the town, and all morning a steady, feathery snow had been falling, veiling the sights from the windows and wrapping the mountains in a cloak of swan-down.

At last the trucks screamed, the old engine came puffing and wheezing to a tired halt, and the two girls, with Young Milt at their heels, stepped out, burdened with parcels.

On the cinder platform Juanita looked about for Anne Haver, and saw him standing in a group with Job and several other men whom she did not know—but Anne's face was not turned toward her, and it did not wear the look of expectancy that the thought of her usually brought there. Job's countenance, too, was white and set, and a breathless tenseness seemed to hold the whole group in fixed tautness.

There were several clumps of men standing about, all armed, and every face wore the same expression of waiting sternness.

A gasp of premonition rose to Juanita's lips as she caught the sinister, spirit of suspense in the atmosphere. Then Milt McBrier stepped down from the smoker vestibule, followed by another man.

As the two turned in opposite directions on the snow-covered platform, one of the men who had been standing with Anne Haver laid a hand on the shoulder of the clean-shaven arrival and said in a clear voice: "Luke Thixton, I want you for the murder of Fletcher McNeash."

Old Milt McBrier, for once startled, out of his case-hardened self-control, wheeled and demanded angrily: "What's his trick in this?" His eyes were blazing, and his face worked with passionate fury.

A deputy answered him: "An' Milt, McBrier, I want you, too, on an indictment for accessory to murder."

Juanita felt Anne's arm and her own knees grew suddenly weak. She heard a clatter of parcels as Young Milt dropped them in the snow and leaped forward, his eyes kindling and his right hand, frantically clanking at the buttons of overcoat and coat. But before he could draw, Job McNeash had wheeled to face him, bending forward to a half-crouch. The younger McBrier halted and bent back under the glint of the revolver which Job was thrusting into his face.

Haver, armed and grim of visage, now began drawing close about the captives.

Dawn clung with bloodless lips and white cheeks to Juanita as she watched Job holding his weapon in the face of the boy whom she suddenly realized she loved more than her brother.

Then the sheriff spoke again: "That ain't no use in makin' no trouble, Milt. Ther grand jury hes done acted, an' I reckon ye'd better let the law take its course."

"Why don't ye take me, too?" demanded Young Milt in a tense, passionate voice. "I'm a McBrier. That's all ye've got against any of these men."

"The grand jury didn't indict ye, son," responded the sheriff calmly.

Then the elder McBrier became suddenly quiet again and self-posessed. He turned to his son.

"Milt," he said, sternly, "you keep outen this. Ride over home an' tell every man that calls himself a McBrier—that his voice suddenly rose in the defiant crescendo of a trapped lion."

"Tell every man that calls himself a McBrier that ther Haveres hev got me in ther damned jailhouse—an' ask em ef they aims ter let me lay thar."

Young Milt turned and went at a run toward the livery stable. Over his shoulder as he went he flung back at Job, who stood looking after him with lowered pistol: "I'm goin' now, but I'll be back ter reckon it you."

And Job shouted, too: "Ye kaint come back none too soon, Milt. I'll be dyar when ye comes."

Then the group started on their tramp toward the courthouse and the little jail that lay at its side.

Juanita suddenly realized that she and Anne were standing as if rooted to the spot. The older girl heard an inarticulate moan break from the lips of the younger, and then, as though waking out of sleep, she looked absently down at a litter of befeathered parcels which lay about her feet. That message which Old Milt had flung back to his people on the lips of his son would send tumbling to arms every man who could carry a rifle!

And the Haveres were grimly waiting for them. The Haveres were already there. The two girls could not ride across the ridge now. They could only sit in their room at the wretched hotel and wait, too.

Juanita was glad Dawn could cry. She couldn't. She could only look ahead and see a processional of hideous possibilities.

It had been a few minutes after noon when Young Milt had rushed into the livery stable and ordered his horse. In that one instant all his college influences had dropped away from him, and he was following the fierce single star of clan loyalty.

His father, who had never been any man's captive, was back there in the vermin-infested little jailhouse, a prisoner to the Haveres. And when Young Milt came back, the one Haver he had marked for his own was the Haver whose pistol muzzle he had been forced to give back—Young Jeb McNeash.

The stroke had taken the McBriers completely by surprise. The boy must reach his own territory and rally them to their fullest numbers, even from the remotest coves. This battle was to be fought in the enemy's own stronghold and against a force which was ready to the last note of preparation.

So nothing could happen until tomorrow. Nothing would happen, in all likelihood, until the day after that, and meanwhile the two girls in the hotel must sit there thinking.

The little town itself lay dismal and hopeless, with its shacks scattered over its broken and uneven levels.

Dawn, perhaps, found it hardest; for in this one day Dawn had grown up, and tomorrow would bring the boy whom she now confessed to loving, though she confessed it with self-contempt, leading a force to meet that of her own people, fighting to avenge her father. Juanita, whose eyes could not escape ironical reminders when she glanced down at the Christmas packages, seemed to hear over and over the voice of Anne Haver saying: "I'm doing it because ye ask it."

She had sought to avert an assassination, and it seemed that the effort would precipitate a holocaust.

Anno was very busy, but he found time to come to her that afternoon. In the bare little hotel lobby the firelight glinted on many rifles as their owners lounged about the hearth.

And in Anne she saw once more the stern side. His face was flaming, and in his eyes was that expression which made her realize how inflexibly he would set about the accomplishment of the thing he had undertaken. Then, as he spoke to her, a sudden softness came into his eyes.

"God knows I'm sorry," he said, "that this thing broke just now. I didn't aim that ye should be no eye-witness."

Juanita smiled rather wanly. Old Milt, he told her, would soon be released. "We ain't oven goin' to keep him in the jailhouse so longer than mornin'." We couldn't convict him, an' it would only bring on more trouble.

"Why was he arrested?" she asked blankly.

"Just to keep him out of mischief overnight," he smiled. "Even the law can be used for strategy."

"What will happen when the McBriers come back?" she demanded in a shaken voice.

He shook his head. "I can't hardly say," he replied.

But the next morning Anne Haver came again and cautioned the two women not to leave their rooms and not to keep their shutters open. All that day the town lay like a turtle, tight drawn into its shell. Streets were empty. Doors were locked and shutters barred. But toward evening, to the girls' astonishment, the two Haveres riding out of town instead of into it. Soon there were no more horses at the racks. By night the place which was to be assaulted tomorrow seemed to have been abandoned by its defenders.

Old Milt McBrier had ridden out in the morning, freed but wrathful, to meet the men who were hurrying in. The figure of Old Anne Haver she saw often from her window, but for the most part the force of Haveres had evaporated.

Then followed another wretched night, and with forenoon the snow-wrapped town settled down to the empty silence of a cemetery, but with early afternoon the new procession began to come in. A long and continuous stream of McBrier horsemen, each armed to the teeth, rode past the hotel and went straight to the courthouse. Then she heard again the sound she had heard on her first night in the mountains, only now it came from a hundred throats.

It was the McBrier yell, and after it came a scattering of rifle and pistol shots. The clan was going away again and shooting up the town as they went, but what had happened down there at the courthouse?

CHAPTER XXI.

Later she heard the story. The Mc-

Briers had come expecting battle. They had found every road open and the town deserted. For a time they had gone about looking for trouble, but found no one to oppose them. Then Old Milt and his son had ridden

"Tell Every Man That Calls His Self a McBrier That the Haveres Havn' Got Me In Ther Damned Jailhouse!"

don to the courthouse to demand the keys of the jail. They found Judge Sidering sitting in the little office, and with him, quite unarmed and without escort, sat Bud Anne Haver. When the two McBriers, backed by a score of armed men, broke fiercely into the room, others massed at their backs, crowding doorway and hall.

Judge Sidering greeted his visitors as though no intimation had ever reached him that they were coming with a grievance.

"Come in, Milt, and have a chair," he invited.

"Cheer, hell!" shouted Milt McBrier, "give me the keys ter the jailhouse, an' give 'em ter me quick!"

Opening the drawer of his desk as if he had been asked for a match, Judge Sidering took out the big iron key to the outer door and the smaller brass key to the little row of cells. He tossed the two across to Milt in a matter-of-fact fashion.

Five minutes later the McBrier chief was back trembling with rage. He had found the jail empty.

"If you're lookin' for Luke Thixton, Milt," said the judge calmly, "the high sheriff took him to Louisville yesterday for safe-keeping!"

The answer was a hollow roar. Old Milt McBrier threw forward his rifle.

Anno looked up and spoke slowly: "I reckon it wouldn't profit ye much to harm us, Milt. We ain't armed, an' it would bring on a heap of trouble."

Outside rose an angry chorus of voices. The news that the jail was empty had gone through the crowd.

For a time the McBriers stood there debating their next step. The town seemed at his mercy. Seemed! That word gave him pause. The way home lay through Haver territory, which might mean twenty miles of solid ambush. Anne Haver sat too quietly for Milt's ease of mind. Was he baiting some fresh trap?

The old intriguer felt baffled and at sea. He had grown accustomed to weighing and calculating with godlike deliberation. He balked at swift and impulsive action. Moreover, if he debated long, he might not be able to control his men. He looked up—to see little Milt, who was fighting back the crowd at the door and locking them out. Beyond the pannels could be heard loud swearing and the impatient shuffling of many feet.

"What shall we do, son?" inquired the older man of the younger. His voice had a note of appeal and breaking power.

When Young Milt had ridden out of Perli no feudist in the hills had borne a heart full of hatred and hunger for vengeance, but that was because of his father. Now his father was free. For Luke Thixton he had a profound contempt. He saw in the situation only a game of wits in which Anne Haver was winner.

"Well," he replied with a grin he could not repress, "it looks right, smart ter me, like thar ain't nothin' to do but ride on back home an' try again next time."

That counsel in the end prevailed. Outside there had been a short, sharp struggle with a mutinous spirit. Those men had come for action and they did not want to ride back folded, but the word of Old Milt had stood unchallenged too long to fall now. Yet he loomed back a grumbling following and bore a discomfited power. They could not forget that a Haver had won their fight.

So the spirit of the men who had come to fight vented itself in the yell and the random shots to which there was no reply, and again a train of horsemen were on their way into the hills.

When it was all over and Juanita sat there in her empty school she was realizing that, after all, the desperate moment had only been deferred and must come with absolute certainty. Christmas was only two days off and her gun-rack was empty. When she had come home there had not been a single weapon there.

There would be no Christmas tree now! The befeathered packages lay in a useless pile, and school bells in session, she knew that the desks would have been as empty as the gun-rack. The whole turtleside life had drawn in its head and the countryside lay as though besieged.

On Anne Haver's book-shelves were now volumes, for Juanita was feeding his scant supply, and a softer type of poetry was being added to his frugal and stern repertoire. A number of men left the mountains and went into exile elsewhere. These were the witnesses who must testify against Luke Thixton and whose lives would not have been worth a nickel had they stayed at home.

Then came Christmas day itself, bleak and soggy with the thaw that had set in and the moody drizzle of the day. The sun seemed to have disappeared and made its course splitlessly from dawn to twilight, crawling dimly across its daily arc.

Brother Anne Talbott came over to the school and found both women sitting apathetically by an untrimmed fir tree amid a litter of forgotten packages. The children of Tribulation were having the sort of Christmas they had always cheer—a day of terror and empty cheerlessness.

"It seems like a right smart pity for them children ter be plumb, totally disapp'nted," mused the old preacher. "S'pose now ye put names on them gowgaws an' let me jest sorter ride round an' scatter 'em."

"You dear old saint!" cried Juanita, suddenly roused out of her apathy. "But you'll freeze to death an' get drowned in some ford."

"That's all right," the preacher answered briefly. "I reckon I kin go ther route."

In fact, criticism of "The Only Girl" is not complete without special comment of the artistic stage settings. In keeping with the story of the comedy, and the pretty costumes worn by the female characters in the cast, the production is a masterpiece of what is promised to be the last thing in women's dress for 1915-16. The return of the hoop-skirt and the puffed skirt were startling innovations of the chorus.

"The Only Girl" deals entirely with the endeavors of musical comedians to maintain their reputation as a "woman hater" and his descent in the recital of love affairs of his several male friends. Of course, "Klim" the woman-hater succumbs in the end and finds he, too, has "The Only Girl."

"William Naughton as 'Klim,' Helen Taylor as Ruth, scored in the important roles, being mutually assisted by Adele Hansen, Lydia Crane, Ellen Crane, Cecelia Saxton, Ray Durkin, Anne, Richard Thompson and William Lennox.

"It seemed that each and every one had a splendid voice, and the musical power of a special orchestra of musical accompaniment the company."

COLONIAL THEATRE.

"THE ONLY GIRL" SCORES.

The Cumberland Times says: "Cumberland's theatre-goers enjoyed to the utmost the comedy, the singing, the handsome cast, and the stage settings of 'The Only Girl' Saturday night at the Maryland Theatre."

Its originality and pleasing lines, so different from the usual attractions of its kind, was absolutely refreshing. In fact, the audience of 'The Only Girl' was given an opportunity to see first hand, high class comedy interpolated with good singing presented by a company of talented artists and musicians, direct from the big city playhouses.

"In all three acts, the interiors were staged in a manner that won the approbation of the audience."

"The Only Girl" is not complete without special comment of the artistic stage settings.
